Asymmetric Disasters

By James C. Jones EMT/CHCM

The term “asymmetric warfare” has become common in the post-Cold War era. It refers to warfare where the opposing sides use completely different tactics and weapons. Until recently most warfare was mainly symmetrical. For example, during World War Two, it was the Japanese Navy vs the U.S. Navy and the German Army vs. the Soviet Army --- symmetrical. In modern asymmetrical warfare the opposing forces use non-opposing tactics and weapons. For example, The North Vietnams Army lost the battles against the US military, but won the war by undermining America’s will through media manipulation and street demonstrations staged by front organizations. Russia and China (among other) have been using various non-symmetrical methods against the American economy, political system and military strength for decades. In most cases it’s a war against our civilians and our society. The enemy cannot match our military forces, but they can drag down our economy, divide our population and create chaos in our cities and towns. In fact, these asymmetrical assaults are a major element in the asymmetrical threat matrix that survivalists must recognize and attempt to cope with.

The term “non-symmetrical” applied to disasters implies disastrous effects that do not relate directly to the evident disaster that we are preparing for and/or trying to survive. For example, we have specific methods and equipment to survive tornadoes, that’s symmetrical. We do this and have these to survive that. Examples of non-symmetrical disasters are an epidemic that we are able to survive, but are caught in violence and civil-disorder by those who are not prepared. We do this and have that, but are harmed by something else. Many preppers are misled into preparing for what I like to call the “Fright of the Month”, specific high-profile disasters that require specific, targeted preparations and equipment. There was the big meteor scare a few years ago, and Y2K. Survival gear pushers made plenty of money on those. Some folks are focused on surviving an EMP or cyber-attack, while others concentrate on bugging-out in a general collapse. They have symmetrical preparations for certain scenarios. A century ago folks living in the Great Plains prepared for tornadoes and maybe droughts, but not earthquakes or hurricanes or civil disorder, but in today's connected, networked world every disaster or negative trend will affect the severity and survivability of every other disaster. Today the farmer in Kansas still needs his tornado shelter, but his economic security is endangered by fires in California and civil unrest in Chicago.

There is no such thing as disaster recovery. If the region or the country gets back to what it was before the event within five or ten years, that five or ten years of progress is lost forever along with all of the labor, resources and money that could have been used to make progress and build strength and safety against further disaster. The more disasters we have the weaker we become. The terrorist won on 9/11 in that they continue to cost America billions of dollars each year in security systems, lost production and military operations that could have been used to lower taxes and save our crumbling infrastructure. Russia damaged America just by trying to influence our elections*.

Solutions, preventive measures or recovery efforts related to any disaster or potential threat inevitably drains resources from other areas of the economy. What was once progress now becomes defense and recovery. Solutions that involve legislation and governmental expansion increase taxation, and regulation while decreasing individual liberties, income and capacity for individual preparedness. This approach to "public safety" generates political and social unrest and economic dysfunction while generating an increasingly dependent and vulnerable population. Just a few examples of interconnected asymmetric disasters are listed below.

- Shortening life expectancy: After decades of lengthening life expectancy it has begun to shorten because of drug addiction and suicide rates. This may be due to internet related stress and subconscious insecurity.
- Massive drug addiction: If our society is so great why do people need drugs just to keep going?
- Mental capacity depletion: Yes, human IQs have been declining for decades. Most scientists postulate that the advent of centralized (the grid) systems for providing life essential needs is the cause of this decline. Earlier populations were basically survivalists fending for themselves to some extent. This is borne out by the fact that wolves are found to be smarter than dogs. Survival makes you smarter. The internet and Smart-Phones are accelerating this dumbing trend. A recent study of children who used iPads and Smart-Phones more than two hours per-day found that they scored lower on critical-thinking and language tests. None of this bodes well for survival and freedom.
- Infrastructure degeneration: Constantly recovering from or preparing for disaster leaves little for repair and upkeep of existing roads, bridges, electrical grids and pipelines. The massive infrastructure that was built during the twentieth century just cannot be maintained as it is now mostly over a century old. Urban tax bases and populations cannot sustain these crumbling systems.

- Declining freedom and privacy: Overpopulation, crowding, multiplying disasters and increased centralization has already resulted in the loss of many individual liberties enjoyed and fought for by previous generations. Technology combined with public apathy and fear has permitted the total loss of individual privacy to be acceptable. They know what you buy, what you do, where you go and who you are with 24/7. The great majority of the world's population lives under some form of dictatorship and freedoms are dwindling rapidly in the few existing true democracies. The USA is still the freest nation on earth and has the most well-armed population as a deterrent to oppression, but this deterrent is under constant assault. **
- Critical resource depletion: Simply put: we use far more than we generate and we are using up reserves at an ever-increasing rate. Petroleum, and natural gas will be exhausted by the end of the century and solar and wind will no-where near compensate for the loss. Even water and arable land will be sources of conflict in the next few decades.
- Mass pacification: All current political, social and economic trends are dedicated towards individual dependency on systems and the grid in spite of the consistent failures and obvious fragility of those centralized structures. Special interests, elitist philosophies and governmental establishments cannot tolerate a shifting paradigm and a dependent population will regard independent thinking, and self-reliant people (us) as a threat to their false sense of security. Self-reliance, survival preparedness and self-defense could be strictly regulated or even prohibited. This would be especially true if survivalist persist in paranoid avoidance of organization and public relations to defend their interests. Paranoia is a self-fulfilling mental disorder.

- Crimigration: I invented this term to separate it from legal and orderly immigration. It describes the massive criminal entry into another country by those seeking benefits at the expense of the legal citizens therein. It also applies to the exportation of criminals and drugs into a victim nation by foreign countries and their citizens. Historically this leads to the decline and collapse of the victim nation. ***
- Mythical Economics: The world economy is basically smoke and mirrors. We all know this, but as long as we all pretend that the world's productivity and resources are in balance with its currencies and that debt is meaningless things will stay calm, but sooner or later the myth will evaporate. Shush, don't tell anyone.

Conclusions and Recommendations

Asymmetrical threats are extremely difficult to manage. They may be related to or be exacerbated by more obvious and symmetrical threats such as crime, civil disorder, epidemics, storms and terrorism that are subject to symmetrical (do this for that) preparedness and survival techniques, but create much more complex challenges. Traditional methods and equipment such as survival kits, weapons, first aid skills or shelters have limited value in preventing or surviving asymmetrical threats. Of course, energetic development of one's survival and self-reliance capacity is critical to surviving symmetrical threats and to mitigating some effects of asymmetrical threats, but cannot directly prevent or avoid their impact on the future. Much more organized and comprehensive survival programs and creative tactics will be needed to assure the life, liberty and security of the current and coming generations

 I find it interesting that people find the attempts to influence American election shocking. Russia (then the USSR) massively affected American politics from the 1930s through the Vietnam War era through the communist party and its front organization in the USA. The internet is just a new method. Be aware that the entire Russian economy is about the same as the State of New York USA. They cannot militarily match NATO so they must resort to asymmetric methods.*

 Most of our founding members grew up reading the books 1984, Animal Farm, and Brave New World, in these books the masses were watched everywhere they went, everything they did was regulated, the language was twisted by "New Speak" (freedom is slavery) to manipulate thoughts, and drugs were ubiquitously used to pacify the population. We regarded this as a science-fiction nightmare, yet today the masses voluntarily accept and comply like sheep.*

* The recent United Nations Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration adopted in Morocco declares migration to be a "Human right" effectively eliminating national borders. One member of the European Parliament warned that this effectively criminalized criticism of migration by defining it as "hate speech" It is this kind of globalist, elitist activities that is justifiably generating resistance and nascent revolution in Europe.*

51st Annual Meeting Report

The 51st Annual Meeting of Live Free USA was called to order at 1:15 PM at Cabela's Conference Center in Hammond Indiana on March 30th 2019. After the pledge of allegiance and a moment of silence for a recently deceased member the proceedings were opened. Jim Jones presented a short review of the Live Free USA bylaws focusing on the mission-statement, duties of officers and terms. Jim then presented his State of Live Free Report. The beginning balance for 2018 was $8,836.00 and the ending balance was $13,398.00. The largest income sources were book sales at preparedness expos and gun shows, and membership dues. The major expenses were printing, book purchases and event facilities. It was noted that part of the gain was from previous investments made in 2017 and delaying some expenses until January 2019, however we still have a good surplus to use for projects in 2019. A significant part of the 2018 income was from sales at several preparedness expositions. Jim stated that he had paid his own fuel, meals and hotel bills for these and would probably not do them outside the local area in the future. Having other members do more gun shows and local expos will be important to sustaining this income.

Throughout 2018 and early 2019 there have been a number of leadership meetings, lunches and conferences in preparation for Jim's resignation as president. Ultimately it was decided that no major reorganization would be necessary as long as we had enough capable and motivated officer candidates available. Two minor amendments were proposed to strengthen and broaden the Board of Directors. The proposed candidates represented older veteran members, and new younger members. Jim emphasized that elected officers were expected to take on specific tasks, but could build teams and designate “Deputy Directors” to support their efforts.

The following amendments were adopted

- James C. Jones will be designated as a permanent, voting Director on the Board of Directors.
- Three new Directorship will be added to the Board of Directors as follows. Director #5 will be elected for a three year term in March of 2019, Director #6 will be elected for a three year term in March of 2020, and Director #7 will be elected for a three year term in March of 2021.

The following officers were elected

- President: Mark Smith, gunnbunnies219@gmail.com
- Vice-President: Ray Duensing, NWIPreparedness@gmail.com
- Recording Secretary: Beth Duensing, BethD@libertyStraightUp.net
- Membership Secretary: Zach Garza, ZackGarza@outlook.com
- Director #1: Will Garza, WillGarza@outlook.com
- Director #2: Jeff Agan, HighDrCropper@hotmail.com
- Director #5. Nick Carlson, NicknJoan@SBCglobal.net
- Founding Director: Jim Jones, survivorjj@aol.com

Not up for election this year were:

- Directors #3: Larry Chisausky, larry.chisausky@gmail.com

- Director #4: Michelle Augustyn, Bristol609@yahoo.com
- Treasurer: Marie Jones, sassymariej@aol.com

Jim Jones offered some final comments and advice to the new officers before turning the podium over to Mark Smith.

Mark stated his intentions to build the organization and carry on the missions. He also indicated that the organization needs a “brick and mortar” existence and that he intends to actively seek donors, supporters and grants to that end. He planned to lead a delegation to the NRA convention in Indianapolis seeking potential support. Mark adjourned the Annual Meeting after calling on all of the officers to stay for a short Board of Directors meeting.

A Review of the Defense Alert Device (D.A.D.):

A Unique, Effective Non-Lethal Self-Defense Tool

By Warren Lind

For the last several weeks I have had the opportunity to test the D.A.D. made by TigerLight – www.tigerlight.net. Although this device has been around for years, since 2015, I was not aware of it until I saw a TV news show.

Most of the readers of this publication probably carry many of the same weapons that police officers do: a firearm, pepper spray, a tactical flashlight, a folding knife, and perhaps an impact weapon such as a tactical pen or a keychain baton. But there is one tool that we don't have: a radio to summon back-up. The D.A.D. is unique in that it combines military-grade OC, a 5-mode tactical flashlight, and three alert systems to let others know that you are in danger: Crowd Alert™, D.A.D. App Alerts, and Text/Email Alerts.

Let's say that you have a CCW license and you are walking from your vehicle to a shopping center. You may have the five aforementioned weapons in your pockets or the gun in a holster, but you probably won't have any of these self-defense tools in your hands, unless it is a key-chain baton. In most states it would be illegal to have a gun in your hand. During the daytime there would be no need to carry a tactical flashlight. I do always have my Persuader™ Baton with keys in my right hand.

So, imagine this scenario: all of a sudden, an attacker comes out between two cars and knocks you to the ground, or appears 3 feet away with a knife. How fast can you pull a self-defense tool from a holster or pocket? Here is where the D.A.D. shines: it is always in your hand and secured by a strap. Second, it doesn't look like a weapon. Third, it is made of Polycarbonate, the same material that professional football helmets and bullet resistant windows are made of. The natural reaction when we are attacked is to throw up our hands to protect our face and body; this puts the D.A.D. in position to be used against the criminal.

The pepper spray is made by Sabre Red in Fenton, Missouri. The spray comes out in a cone pattern for a range of 8 feet. In tests by the Los Angeles Police Department, previous TigerLights, using spray just over half as strong as that used in the D.A.D., although larger, had an unprecedented 96% stop rate against attackers, even those who are mentally ill and/or high on drugs/alcohol.. Other non-lethal tools have a stop rate ranging from 45-to-70%. The flashlight is 150 lumens and I have tested it on myself in a mirror. At night the strobe mode would be very effective in disorienting an attacker. There are also high, low, constant strobe and SOS modes, so the D.A.D. can be utilized as an ordinary flashlight. Because of its tough construction, the device can also be utilized as an impact weapon.

The alert system is very unique: when the OC is utilized, an automatic alert is sent out through the app on your smart phone, which has to be within 10 feet of the D.A.D. Anyone who has this app on their phone and who is within a one-mile distance, will receive an alert that you are in trouble; your location will be pinpointed and these people can choose whether to respond or to call the police. In addition, you can program 5 phone numbers in the app, and anywhere in the world, these people will also be alerted to the attack and can call the police. Text/email alerts will also be sent out. If you are carrying the D.A.D., you can also send out an alert without "firing" the OC. Finally, you can send out an "I'M OKAY" alert through the app using your secret PIN as well as a test alert to make sure the device is properly working.

As ex-Navy Seal Ken Good points out in his YouTube video, the use of a firearm may not be reasonably, morally, or legally justified in many situations; thus, we all need an effective non-lethal back-up. Second, there are people who may have moral objections to carrying a firearm, or may be legally prohibited, i.e., a teenager. The elderly or disabled may not be able to utilize a firearm. Lastly, most of the self-defense tools that we carry require the use of fine motor skills: the D.A.D. does not.

What makes the D.A.D. so effective?

Again, per Ken Good: 1) It is always in our hand and remains so even in a violent attack, 2) the tactical light distraction and stealth deployment of the OC catches the attacker by surprise. Experience by police officers show that if suspects know that they are going to be sprayed with OC, they can hold their breath or shield their face; not so with the D.A.D.

The details: the D.A.D. sells for $129.99 and comes with an inert OC canister as well as the Sabre Red, and a battery. There is a 30-day money back guarantee and a 1-year warranty. Replacement OC units can be purchased through TigerLight. This device is legal in all 50 states and requires no license. New York and Massachusetts require that pepper spray be purchased from a licensed gun dealer.

The TigerLight website is among the most informative that I have ever seen. I urge readers to especially watch the videos and read the F.A.Q. Also, YouTube had many excellent videos on D.A.D. Besides the two videos by Ken Good, I urge the readers to watch "D.A.D. Defense Alert Device Short Demo", and "D.A.D. Intro Training and

"Technology is the sharp weapon of the modern state"

Quotation from Xi Jinping, President of the Peoples Republic of China

Chines technology leaders speak of "a new world order" created by facial recognition and artificial intelligent systems.

You may have noticed that in spite of the oppressive nature of Communist China there are no more protests or resistance. Smartphones are in everyone's hands so the state is in everyone's head. Pacified, distracted, misinformed and monitored 24/7. America is just a little behind, but is this who we want to be and how we want our children to live? While we have been focused on Russia's ham-fisted efforts to influence elections and hack our social-media, China has gone far beyond that. In fact, China has been at war with America for several decades. They have already infiltrated and gained control of much of our wireless and internet systems, including corporate, government and private applications. The initiation of the 5-G systems is almost wholly controlled by the Chines. Pretymuch everything you say, everywhere you go and everything you do is available to them. Not only is "Big Brother" watching you, he is Cines and he is a communist. Sun Tzu stated in his classic The Art of War that a war should be won before the enemy knows it started. This war may already be lost.

Ten Foundations of Live Free Membership

While the values and principles of this organization are well established in our motto "Preparedness. Self-Reliance, Responsibility" and in our mission statement, a more detailed listing of the basic desirable attributes of membership may be helpful. You will note that these elements are balanced between personal and family priorities and broader responsibilities to the community and to fellow members. This is an important attribute of the Live Free USA mission. While survival and preparedness should be universal values, they are inseparable from basic philosophical (and therefore political) issues that become more urgent and relevant as we enter a period of increasing peril and vulnerability. It is this reality that makes "Live Fee" a more appropriate name than one with the words "survival" or "prepper" in the title.

All of these directives are preceded by action words, as making things happen is the only justification for any organization.

1. PREPAREDNESS: Advance and sustain personal and family emergency preparedness, self-reliance and independence through continuous self-improvement
2. RESISTANCE: Resist and oppose trends and movements that increase centralized control, and individual dependency.
3. ADVOCACY: Advocate and support programs and activities that promote greater levels of emergency preparedness, self-reliance, and individual freedom.
4. RESPONSIBILITY: Aid and assist my neighbors and community in times of disaster and adversity.
5. COMMITMENT: Maintain and advance the skills and equipment necessary to defend life, liberty and property against crime and oppression.
6. CITIZENSHIP: Demonstrate and practice responsible citizenship through involvement and support of community safety, preparedness and crime prevention programs.

7. SUPPORTIVENESS: Instruct, inform and aid friends, neighbors and family members that accept personal responsibility for protecting their own survival and freedom.
8. LOYALTY: Pledge and commit to protect, assist and support fellow Live Free USA members and group members in their pursuit of self-reliance, self-improvement and self-defense capabilities.
9. VIGILANCE: Observe and analyze the physical, economic, political and social environment for immediate and potential dangers to life, liberty and property.
10. DETERMINATION: Resolve and act to assure that the values and practices of individual self-reliance, self-defense, privacy, security and freedom are defended and sustained for future generations.

When to bug out from 'SHFT Plan'

Here is a list of situations that would indicate the need to evacuate. Of course you still have to have the ability to evacuate and evacuation (bug out) still has to offer a greater level of security than digging in and dealing with the situation. It also depends on where you are evacuating from and if you have a safer place to go. We will explore this decision in greater detail in future issues.

1. A complete collapse of the markets (a lagging indicator, but hitting rock bottom is a sign that it is gone), to include the Baltic Dry Index, and all commodities markets.

2. The President, Vice-President, and members of Congress and the Pentagon "disappear" very suddenly and noticeably.
3. National Guard and Active Duty troops and vehicles are out on the highways all of a sudden, moving out of cities and off of military establishments.
4. A nationwide bank "holiday" for all banks occurs, with all accounts frozen...this would be very bad.
5. Foreign military forces on the move either in the vicinity of or to the United States
6. Outright declaration of either hostilities or an emergency condition by the MSM (mainstream media)
7. Over a course of time: key members of industry, banking, and the government take "extended vacations" and disappear from the public eye.
8. Sudden shortages or halts in the shipments of food, medicines, fuel, or any other necessary item...without any warning. Think Venezuela.
9. Heavy troop and police movements and coordinating activities in major metropolitan areas
10. Hospitals tasked with any kind of mass-casualty emergency preparations
11. Numbers 1-10 happening simultaneously in foreign nations along with the U.S.
12. Increased police and military checkpoints and restrictions on travel domestically or internationally
13. Decoupling of financial markets and banks overseas and in foreign nations.
14. Recall of any and all ambassadors and staff back to the United States on short notice.

Defense Wrench

Constructed of high-impact plastic, this pocket-friendly tool has six hex head sockets and three self-defense striking surfaces. It can be kept in the pocket or used as a key tote. From Five Star Gear for $9.95 at FiveStarGear.com

When held between the fingers the crescent shaped head is an effective weapon as are both ends of the wrench shaft.

Durable Emergency Sleeping Bag

A perfect alternative to the flimsy Mylar™ emergency blankets that last only a day or two and the more bulky Space Blankets and sleeping bags. This bag is durable enough to last for a several days or even a week or two. The tougher outer layer is not easily punctured by branches or rocks and the bag can be rolled up and use many times. At only 1.75 ounces and packaged into a 2 ½ inch diameter by 6 ½ inch long bag it's perfect for survival kits and light bugout bags. When open its 31 inch by 86 inch size is roomy enough for anyone. The aluminized inner layer retains 90-percent of body heat while the outer layer seals out rain and wind. This bag could also be combined with a tactical blanket or other protection for added effectiveness. This bag is still intended for temporary emergency use and is not a replacement for the more durable and expensive sleeping bags and reflective blankets for regular camping, but it is much better than low-cost “emergency use only” alternatives that come only in bright orange, and tear easily. This bag comes in several camouflage patterns as well as orange. From Titan Survival at www.TitanSurvival.com for $15.99 plus Shipping.

While just a bit too large for the pocket, the Titan Emergency Sleeping Bag is perfect for survival kits and light bugout bags.

The aluminized interior offers the same heat reflective properties as the one-time, Mylar™ emergency bags or the more bulky and expensive Space Blankets™. Note the woodland pattern camouflage
